

A website for families in the disability community

The Finding Your Way website was created to support families. It was made by and for families in the disability community.

The website has sections on:

- housing
- justice
- assistance and technology
- family
- education
- sport
- health.

For example, the website has ideas about talking to your child's school. There is also information about small changes that can make school more fair for your child.

Some of the words on the website are hard. Some of the information is about Tasmania.

We trust this resource

We trust this resource because it is:
